SCREENPLAYS: a trilogy

'For The Freedom', 'Between Life and Death', and 'Trail of Tears' feature a contemporary trilogy of Western screenplays, with each part showcasing a strong female protagonist. Although each story has different plots and characters, they share a common setting in the same city.

1. For The Freedom

In a city overrun by criminals, a resilient young Syrian refugee confronts a racist journalist, unveiling the secrets of her enigmatic tattoo and the haunting truths of her tumultuous past, all while navigating the deadly urban landscape to ensure justice prevails.
